Anthony Faraut has been working in Amadeus for more than 3 months, from June to mid-September 2014.

During this period, he built a product on a multiple-architecture platform, that gather data from remote sites, collect them into a dedicated Database, and design a beautiful interactive web-based UI that provides a driven access to those data.

The product has been finished in time, even before the final date, and during these months, Anthony never hesitated to take initiatives, self-learning technologies he did not know, and persevering on its project until he reached the result wanted, and even over.

Moreover he participated actively in the team meeting, and thanks to his energy and humor, increases the existing team spirit and good working atmosphere.

Best regards,

Paul Ventadoux.
